Chapters 24 & 25

"This is somehow too much information and absolutely not enough information at the same time" I don't know why this line is so hashtag me but WOW hashtag me

"She's giving you next to nothing" ummm check and mate Luna she's giving him tangerines, so,

I love it when character development is this blatant...one might say, character metamorphosis

oh boy he's that Badmiral Dadmiral, Admiral

Well there's those magic plant powers for you, they've been a long time coming

You've heard of wings of fire, now get ready for globes of fire

The gang's all here...Blue, Cricket, Sundew, Luna, and Swordtail. I like all of them, I think, so far, so that's nice!

Cricket says the book is something completely different from what they thought it was. Called it, it's manga

The Book of Clearsight.....a blog post..... . .. .

Chapter 26 & Epilogue

If you're going to hav a fictional revolution I think it is a very good idea to have opposing sides working toward a common goal, especially with a theme is violent force against the social systems that have oppressed you versus empathy toward everyone regardless of how they treat you

me: writes that blue: it's an individual's fault actually the other hivewings besides queen wasp should not be held accountable me: oh

this is a weird fight...

RIGHT off the bat I looooooove that the story proper ends with Blue closing his eyes and the epilogue begins with Luna opening hers, that's OOMPH that's what I like

Rest in peace my naive hope for conlangs...AND AWAKEN IN TEMPESTS OF BRIMSTONE MY FEELINGS ABOUT "DRAGON"

Oh hey it's two of my former favourite characters who I can now longer think about without feeling sick to my stomach

That's The Lost Continent!!! I am not horrifically disappointed and upset whatsoever, how tremendously pleasing. I really do think that the theme is super-cool; I kind of wish Cricket was more resistant to revolution, not in like a full-on bigoted way but just in a more reserved way, given the circumstances, which I, personally, think would be more interesting. I do like Cricket, though, don't get me wrong. I'm very excited for her book. But I thought this book was satisfying too. It was a first book so it was mainly set up for later books, but it didn't feel like filler. I like all the characters -- I hope Burnet and Silverspot come into play at some point -- and I was not expecting to. I give it an 8.5 on a 1 to 10 scale, but on a 1 to 5 scale, I give it a 5.

Thank you all so much for reading this thread and liking it, I like to make people happy so much and I also like talking about books in a critical but appreciative way with goofs & memes and I'm just really really pleased that other people apparently like hearing me talk about that stuff!

@Oncilla: UUUUUGGGGGGHHHHHH

@Snapple: Aw, thanks! I hope to do more of these someday, this was a lot of fun and it seems like people enjoyed it.

Anyway, I knew I forgot to mention something but I couldn't for the life of me remember what it was. Then, this morning, I remembered and it's a legitimate question, rather than a "haha check and mate Sutherland I win again" (which, for the record, I don't want to come across like), but a question I can't find an answer to (although confessedly I have done very little research to find the answer.) So, at the beginning of the book there's a prophecy, just like there is at the beginning of every book in the first arc -- which is, of course, about a prophecy -- and at the beginning of every book in the second arc -- which I thought reaaaaally didn't need a prophecy because it barely ever came up -- but the prophecy at the beginning of this book goes completely unacknowledged, if I recall correctly. I thought it might have been something I missed from the epilogue of Darkness of Dragons, because by that point of the book I had a lot of thoughts and feelings on my mind and I am loath to check, but I looked over the wikia and there's nothing about it. Where did the prophecy come from? Is it one of Moonwatcher's prophecyes? Has she received it yet? And not to sound critical, but does this arc even need a prophecy, because to me the plot seems to be in motion without one? If anyone knows about the inclusion of the prophecy at the beginning, please tell me!

Hmm I was confused about the prophecy too
I feel like maybe since Moon is going to be more important in the next book it'll actually be introduced within the story by then
So it would make sense to have it at the beginning of that book
But still not this one,,,that's confusing

I thought the same thing, but unless Tui was being particularly misleading on the launch day sticky thread, it seems that Book 12 has Cricket's POV, and aren't Cricket and Blue still on Pantala? Unless things move really fast in the next book I don't think Moon is going to play a big role, at least in that one. I wonder if there's just going to be a random prophecy everybody already knows, like, halfway through the third arc...

Oh that’s true cause then Luna and moon and whoever else is going would have to get there quickl...
Unless it’s already there, like you said.
Maybe in the Book of Clearsight? Once they look over it more thoroughly they might end up finding it there

The prophecy seems pretty clearly directed to the dragons of Pyrrhia, though, so I kinda doubt it's in the Book of Clearsight because the Pyrrhians couldn't read it that way.

I've been wondering about this too.

OMIGOSH I love this thread Clever! There are a lot of things I didn't notice (hands on page 225, for example), and a lot of this made me laugh! About the prophecy, I have a theory where either Queen Wasp or Cricket have/will have some form of futureseeing. For Cricket, it would be because she can't be controlled by the Queen, and Queen Wasp because she can mind control. Or is that more like mind reading...? Anyways, it's probably just a trash theory but whatever.

@Sorrel: thanks for bringing this back, this was among the best things ive ever done lol

It's not a trash theory by any means! I think it was confirmed at a q&a with Tui that the prophecy is from Moon, and that it is in the prologue or epilogue of the next book (although i maintain that it's not really necessary for this arc, given we're already a whole book in and the plot's started rolling without a prophecy.) I have seen the theory that Wasp & Cricket are linked in powers quite a bit though; it seems really viable to me so maybe your theory might be true!
